After obtaining "The Son of the Sun", go back to Hidden Leaf Village and go down to the third floor of the library. There you will find Madara Uchiha. Talk to him, and the following will occur: After seeing Madara's skill in fighting techniques, you will get a call from the Van Nuys Police. Go to the Burbank police department, which is conveniently located near the place where you can find Madara Uchiha. The Van Nuys Police Department is easily recognized, as it is a white brick building with a sign on the front that says "Burbank Police Department". The headquarters of the Van Nuys Police Department is located at 6445 Wilshire Boulevard, Burbank, CA 91505. In this mission, you need to do two things. The first is to arrest Madara Uchiha and take him to Burbank Police Department headquarters. The second is to arrest Hisoka and get him to Van Nuys Police Department headquarters. To do this, let us look at the mission's details. Th... A little about "NTBSS: Master Character Training Pack - Madara Uchiha" Madara Uchiha, brother of Naruto Uzumaki, is the best ninja ever who has mastered the art of ninjutsu. He was one of the members of Akatsuki who infiltrated Konoha alongside Naruto Uzumaki and Sasuke Uchiha. Being of the same age as Naruto, he is quite a bit older than Sasuke and in the case of Naruto, his mentor. He has had many battles with Naruto and Sasuke, but because he is the mastermind behind Akatsuki he is constantly on a quest to master a new jutsu and defeat other ninja. In this DLC pack, you will receive a taste of the art of Madara. He will give you the opportunity to become more skilled in some of his ninjutsu. Madara's hidden jutsu are meant to be used as part of a task force, not for revenge, you see. Each of his jutsu has a little brief description. Madara Uchiha is in the downloadable content and no additional purchase is required to obtain this DLC pack. Hope you enjoy it! -King 18k- Just a little about "NTBSS: Master Character Training Pack - Madara Uchiha" Madara Uchiha, brother of Naruto Uzumaki, is the best ninja ever who has mastered the art of ninjutsu. ### What's new:

Released "This DLC is the result of a collaborative effort from you guys out there in the technical community. Together, we have revamped the interface to give you the tools to do what you want." From User to Voltaire: Quest for the Perfect Interface I was having a very pleasant cup of coffee at 2004's JavaOne when, out of the corner of my eye, I caught a whimsical line scrolling by: 100 things you just might not know about Java Programmer An hour or so later, two things in particular came to me: 1- I need to learn more about Java. 2- I should participate in a Java trivia contest to try and get in the Guinness Book of Records The contest was held in Amsterdam that same month, and though I didn't end up winning the contest, I enjoyed the whole experience. In fact, it was interesting to find out that it was actually 5-year-old Anne van Leezen who had placed first in the contest! She won the prize by correctly answering all 12 questions in just a few minutes. At the same time, I was working for the then-recently formed company, MediaVolume, where I was asked to write a Java web application that would manage a news directory. Little did I know I'd be given the opportunity to code the perfect Java UI. Not only did I wind up redesigning the entire application's UI, I also became very fond of the Groovy language as the language seemed to address all the gaps in Java's object-relational mapping features. I had the great fortune to have surrounded myself with bright and talented developers. At the same time, as a designer, I was very much in-tune with Apple's Human Interface Guidelines (HIG), which had just been released earlier that year. Thus, I was able to create our new user interface without sacrificing all the respect the HIG had given us designers. There were several very important themes I learnt during this time: 1) User centricity. All of our application's user interface properties were designed to be friendly, logical, and relevant to the given functionality of the application. Nothing was forced and nothing was ugly, and the only thing that mattered was that it was efficient. Often we found that simple tweaks and usability improvements could have a significant impact on the application's reach. 2) Improved Reusability. Since much of our UI was encapsulated in Java classes and art and backgrounds, which offers new and exciting things every time you play. Key Features: How to Play: The traditional card game is played face-to-face, in a single player game. Upon starting a game, the players are each given five cards from a starting hand. After each deal, one card is selected at random and played by one of the players, who then may set or keep the card. To play a card, simply select the card and place it on the board. The remaining cards are then collected by the player's hand and are added to it. Cards remain on the board until they are played or when the 'draw' ability is executed. Replays: While playing a game, an additional card may be selected to replay. When a player chooses to replay, the card is played again. This will be done as many times as the player desires. Draw Cards: After placing a card on the board, it may be used as a drawing card to obtain any number of cards. A player may draw as many cards as they wish. The player then plays these cards before they are placed on the board. Hand Strength: At the start of a game, the player's hand consists of two cards. Cards gain in strength as they remain on the board and are played or passed by the opponents. Second Player: If a two player game is being played, the second player may play a hand of cards before the first player starts drawing cards. Special Abilities: While playing a card, a player may execute one of the special abilities on the card and select a second one to be played. The second card must be the same type as the first. Card Abilities: A card may have special abilities available to be executed, for example holding a card and allowing it to activate a special ability. When used, the card is discarded after the ability is complete. Special Abilities: A card may have special abilities available to be executed, for example holding a card and allowing it to activate a special ability. When used, the card is discarded after the ability is complete. Void cards: Void cards may be played but do nothing. A player may play any number
